MANEUVER CAMP STRS WINCHESTER

Business Men Perfect Arrangements for Caring for at Least 1,500 Visitors.

CONFESSED BIGAMIST IS EXCUSED BY JURY

Audience of Moving Picture Theater in Panic Over Supposed Fire. Mysterious Shooting.

Special Correspondence of The Star.
WINCHESTER, Va., June 28, 1913.

When the United States cavalry maneuver camp, near Winchester, begins July 29th the officers and men will find that extensive arrangements have been made by local people for the comfort and convenience of the 2,500 or more men and officers who will be present. The Winchester Board of Trade and Allied business organizations have arranged with the townspeople to board at least 1,500 visitors, who will include regular army officers of all ranks, foreign military attaches and other people who will be attracted by the encampment. The hotels and public boarding houses were all quickly booked up with prospective guests and this left the question of providing for the many visitors a very serious one, but it is now remedied, and every one who will come to Winchester during the two-month encampment will be assured of comfortable quarters, good food and reasonable rates.

The first question of a suitable camp site has been finally settled and will be located on a tract of 1,200 acres of land on the Opequon, a historic stream, about four miles southeast of Winchester. Many army engineers and privates from Fort Myer are already on the ground laying out the camp, arranging the water supply, sanitation, etc., and establishing headquarters in the town.

Although George Brox had confessed that he was a bigamist, a jury in the circuit court of Clarke county has brought in a verdict of acquittal in his favor, excusing the circumstances surrounding the case. Brox's first wife, who was the prosecutor in the case just ended, had deserted him a long while ago, leaving her husband with an infant child to care for. The second Mrs. Brox then put in an appearance, and taking compass in the infant and the father, nursed the child through infancy and became Mrs. Brox's housekeeper. Finally Mrs. Brox married her and lived happily until the first wife suddenly came back. The jury decided that Brox had acted in good faith, although ignorantly, and cleared him. He will secure a divorce from his first wife and will marry the present Mrs. Brox.

Bichloride Victim.

Another bichloride of mercury victim is hovering between life and death at the City Hospital, Martinsburg, in the person of Miss Edna Schultz, a pretty seventeen-year-old mill girl who swallowed three of the poison tablets several days ago. Physicians say she will not likely recover. Miss Schultz is a daughter of Mrs. Forney Schultz of Bolivar, near Harpers Ferry.

Dr. Darius Deamster died several days ago at Woodstock, from acute Bright's disease. He was the first president of the Shenandoah Valley Medical Society and was an officer in nearly a dozen medical associations. He was born at Hancock, Md., sixty-five years ago. He leaves a wife and four children.

Mayor Jones of Berryville received intelligence of a serious accident to his son, Thomas Jones, at the Northwest University at Evansville, Ind. Young Jones was leaning out of a fourth-story window at the university when a violent storm came up. A bolt of lightning is thought to have struck him, hurling him from the window to the ground below. His leg was broken and he sustained other injuries besides being rendered totally blind.

Mistaken Dose Causes Death.

Mrs. Mary Magalis Cooks, widow of Job Cooks, a former newspaperman of West Virginia, died suddenly near town several days ago after taking some medicine by mistake, which is now thought to contain some powerful poison. Mrs. Cooks leaves two sons, one of whom is in the army in the west.

In an effort to save his life, Joseph McQuillen, a young man of Strasburg, was rushed to the hospital here, to be operated on at a sunken in the night, suddenly inflicted by a friend. After being in the hospital a few hours death ensued from loss of blood.

The Auditorium, Winchester's only playhouse, located on the second and third floors of the city hall, was the scene of an exciting struggle last night in this week. A moving picture show was in progress before a capacity audience when some one used a fire extinguisher in the gallery. The hissing of the escaping chemicals alarmed the audience, especially when the fluid began falling on their heads. A cry of fire was raised and in an instant the place was a struggling mass of humanity. Men and women were dragged from the long stairway in an unconscious condition and hundreds of others fought on the stairs to get out. The audience of the theater were unable to quiet the panic, although the lights had been turned on and the pianist struck up a lively air. Fortunately there were no casualties.

Last of Gang Sentenced.

The last of the gang of negroes which formed the band of masked men who waylaid and shot to death Clyde J. Carpenter, a young insurance agent of Alexandria, April 15, has been sentenced to involuntary manslaughter. Judge Harrison sentenced the four to four months in jail each. The principal in the shooting, Charles Fisher, had previously been tried and sentenced to twelve years in the penitentiary.

A mysterious shooting affair occurred this week over the line from Frederick county to the city of Washington. Miss Nora Stotter, accompanied by her father, Adam Stotter, and Lawrence Batt, were on a fishing trip. While the young Batt and Miss Stotter were in the stream, Miss Stotter was shot and seriously wounded. It is alleged by Edward Pottenberger of Frederick county that she was shot in the hip and leg, and although Batt was also wounded, he managed to rescue her and carry her ashore. The cause of the shooting has not been learned.

After taking a number of ballots the Winchester city council adjourned without electing a successor to the late Dr. W. S. Love on the board of Handley trustees. The council then elected one of two men—R. Gray Williams and S. L. Lupton—over whom the council was deadlocked. The board will have the custody and disposition of about $200,000 left by the late Judge John Handley to the city of Winchester for various objects.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement of Miss Jean Brice Haldeman of Louisville and George R. Wendling, Jr., of Charles Town, Va., has been announced. The wedding will take place in the autumn or early winter. After the wedding the couple will live in Buenos Aires, where the groom will have charge of a branch of the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Baltimore. The groom is a son of the lecturer, George R. Wendling.

Typoid Fever Scare.

For several days past there has been a genuine typhoid fever scare in this city, and all because of a petty row between city government officials. The presence of a mossy growth in the settling basins on the river started the report that there was typhoid in the water. The health department undertook to correct the presence of the mossy growth by chemical process and the administrative board thought its prerogatives had been trampled on and disregarded.

The upshot was that some one did a good deal of talking and the newspapers promptly printed everything in connection with the matter. There have been

VIRGINIA CAMPAIGN SPILLERS SO FAR

What Little Interest There Is Centers Around Struggle for Attorney General.

STATE MEDICAL BOARD GRILLS 125 APPLICANTS

Virginian Railroad Ordered to Provide Station Facilities—Bonds Lowest for Some Time.

Special Correspondence of The Star.
RICHMOND, Va., June 28, 1913.

With but a few days more than a month intervening before the state primary, the campaign is about as cold, indifferent and quiet as can be imagined. There has been but a single speech so far, that by Attorney General Williams at Buckingham Court House last week. Not one of the other candidates has made a swing or attempted to begin a campaign, except to visit some of the towns and to get a line on the situation. Perhaps the man who has the best organization of all the candidates is Lieut. Gov. Elyson. He has two opponents, and he is doing his work along the most effective lines. He is seeing the people in all parts of the state, and he is getting assurances of support in a fashion which makes him feel good. He is confident that he will be elected, and there are many of the best known leaders of the party who express the same opinion. There are some who go so far as to say that he will get very many more votes than both the other candidates.

What little interest there is in the campaign centers around the struggle for attorney general. Several days ago the publication was made in this city that Mr. Cummings would retire. When he said that statement he at once entered the field of education, endeavoring to select the men possible for division superintendent of schools. He has been unable to get out and to push his campaign, but with the beginning of next week he says he will spend the month of July on the stump, and that he will visit every point in the state possible.

Just what the plans of Mr. Pollard, the third man in the race, and who is the declared candidate of the anti-machine faction, are not known. There is little doubt that he will make a campaign and a hard one. So far the betting is on what majority the winner will have over the other candidates or the man nearest to him.

Professional Walks Crowded.

When the selection of division superintendents of schools was held last week some very interesting things developed. There were several young lawyers—men who had been at the bar from three to seven years—who were seeking the places which pay not exceeding $500 to $1,200 a year. When asked regarding the time they could devote to the work, they said they could devote all their undivided attention, even relinquishing what practice they have at this time, and that they were willing to be admitted to the bar in order to be able to apply for the places.

The fact that the professions are unremunerative was a surprise to the members of the board and to the spectators who listened to the remarks of the applicants when they were asked regarding devoting their entire time to the schools and the work incident to the duties attendant.

The fact is that the state is overcrowded with lawyers and doctors, and unless a man has a connection with some large concern or is taking under the wing of some established firm he has hard sledding for several years after he enters the profession.

This week the state board of medical examiners held a session here and faced a number of applicants for the license to practice in this state. There were five women in the class, two of them coming from the board of health, and the final examination in the colleges which they attended. The examination is decided by those who have been one of the hardest of the state to pass. Some few of the applicants got a glimpse of the papers and then retired on the first day. The board is engaged in bringing the standard of the profession to higher degrees each year and to those who are qualified to be admitted are qualified and who will be a credit to the profession. And each year, too, the number of new practitioners is reduced from the preceding year.

Road Surrenders Old Charter.

At last the charter of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac railroad, issued in 1857, has been surrendered to the state, and the road is hereafter to be operated as other common carriers and will be subject to the rights, privileges and regulations which have governed other roads. Under the old charter the road was not allowed to earn more than 10 per cent any one year, and if it did so the rates and charges were to be reduced. The road was exempt from all taxation under the old charter, and the only way whereby the state could get taxes was by the location of the tracks changed. The state of Virginia owns several shares of stock in the road—perhaps by far the largest stockholder. The dividends are used to defray public expenses. When the charter was amended there was a fight between the state and the railroad as to whether the new charter should be granted. The state contending otherwise. Suits were brought and finally the case was taken to the supreme court of the United States, but it has never been decided, and in view of the settlement of the dispute by agreement and compromise, that case will be abandoned, the road in future to pay all taxes.

The state corporation commission has issued an order directing that the Virginia railroad, the road built by Henry H. Rogers, must provide station facilities along its line in communities where the business and public demands require. The people of Melrose, Campbell county, petitioned for a station for freight and passenger accommodations, but the road resisted and opposed the step in every way.

The matter got to the commission for a hearing, lawyers appearing for the petitioners and for the railroad. Witnesses were heard and the commission, without leaving the bench, ordered that plans for proper station facilities should be filed by the road within twenty days, when a further order directing the work to begin will be issued by the commission. Melrose is in a prosperous section, and much business goes to the road from that point.

LIANG SHI YI'S SON DROWNS.

Young Chinese Boy Had Come to United States for Education.

NEW YORK June 28.—King Ng Liang, son of Liang Shi Yi of Canton, China, secretary to President Yuan Shi Kai of the Chinese republic, was drowned while learning to swim in Lake Hopatcong, N. J., Thursday night. He was fourteen years old and with his brother and sister came to this country a month ago to be educated. He was in the care of Charles M. Muchlin, foreign manager of the American Locomotive Company, who had been yesterday to the Chinese president's secretary for instructions as to funeral arrangements.

The C. O. D. feature of the parcel post system becomes effective Tuesday morning. It does not apply to matter addressed to foreign countries, Canada, Cuba, Mexico, the Republic of Panama, included, nor to the Philippines nor the Canal Zone.

Under its merchandise and other matter admissible to the parcel post may be sent by merchants and others to prospective purchasers and the cost price of the article and charges thereon exceeding $100 may be collected on delivery and returned by money order to the senders, who will be given a receipt showing the name of the office where it was mailed, the date of mailing, the number of the parcel and the amount due him thereon.

Only a parcel will be accepted for mailing only at a money order office and only when addressed to a money order office. The sender also will be reimbursed for the postage, and both are reimbursed to the sender by collection from the addressee upon delivery of the parcel.

Every Parcel Is Insured.

Each such parcel is insured against loss, without additional charge, in an amount equivalent to its actual value, but not to exceed $50. No return receipt is sent back to the sender for the parcel showing its delivery, as the money order for its value and charges is considered tantamount to a receipt.

The addressee of a C. O. D. parcel will not be permitted to examine its contents until after it has been received for delivery, but after delivery it may be returned to the sender on account of dissatisfaction with the contents or the amount collected, except if it be prepared anew and mailed as a new C. O. D. parcel.

The Post Office Department will not be responsible for errors made by senders in stating the amount of the charges to be collected, or for any misunderstanding between sender and addressee as to the character or contents of a parcel.

Distinctive Red Tag Used.

A distinctive red tag, consisting of three coupons, the items in which must be filled in as far as possible by the sender, must be attached to each C. O. D. parcel, one of the coupons, after all are postmarked, to be returned as the sender's receipt for the parcel, and the third to remain attached to the parcel in transit. The sender also will be required to place his name and address on the back of the coupons.

C. O. D. parcels may be accepted for mailing by rural delivery carriers, the receipt to the sender, however, being sent to him only after the parcel has been regularly numbered at the post office.

C. O. D. parcels will be delivered by both city and rural carriers and special delivery messengers according to the rules governing the delivery of registered mail. If the parcel cannot be delivered by the carrier because of the absence of the person to whom it is addressed, a notice will be left for the addressee and the parcel held a reasonable time subject to call.
